"To promote and, if need be, to protect, these mercantile proceedings shall be the above is an extract from the inaugural speech of His Excellency John Pope Hen-NESSY, and it was received with great and marked satisfaction. The native trade of this Colony has so long been the object of attack by the Canton Authorities, and the and illegal that this declaration of a decided to elicit approval. The community hoped muk on the 3rd November, 1876. that a man of action had made his appearauce on the scene, who would not hesitate to take strong preasures, if necessary, to check the piratical action of the Canton Customs cruisers. Nor has anything occurred since to induce a different opinion. His Excellency has certainly startled the Colony by his views on prison discipline and the suppression of crime, but he has not so far given any indication of a tendency to support Sir BROOKE ROBERTSON. At present he has taken no action in the Blockade Question, but as the Commission cannot very well sit until the Chefco Convention has been ratified, and nothing very startling has occurred in connecion with the subject to attract his attention to be wondered at that His Excellency has not yet done anything in fulfilment of the now famous declarationwhich prefaces these remarks. But though which left aggression recently committed by the Hoppo's myrmidens, it must not be supposed

IMPERIAL QUARTO. INGLISH AND CHINESE WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION.

n Anglo Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong. For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have to late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extense. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises. for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given. the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto, attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast coonomy $8.50 space, achieving a clearness not previous attained, and dispensing with those vast margins. 88.25 and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who Orders for Copies may be sent to the Daily CUTLER, PALMER & Co.'s Cognac 4 star $10.50 understand nothing but Chinesa. In this respect

EXTRACTS. THE UNSATISFACTORINESS OF LIFE TRANSLATED PROM THE JAPANESE. EIGHTH CENTURY.

Easy to accumulate and hard to avoid are the eigh greater tribulations. Hard to obtain and easy to exhaust are the joys of a hundred years. What the an cients deplored, I too have reason to lament, and have therefore composed this ede to give vent to my grie at the turning gray of my hairs :---

'Twere idle to complain, Or think to stom unvarying nature's course, And backward to its source Turn the swift torront of the years again, That; with resistless force, Rolls down with ago and sorrow in its train.

Lo! where the virgin choirs are playing, As tender virgins may befit, When, band in hand, they go a maying, And through the merry dance they flit; Bracelots of gems and gold Around their arms are rolled : And, lightly, sleave in sleave entwined, What time the tender virgins go a maying, Their crimson robos all carelessly are swaying As breathes the listless wind.

But eager time cannot be staying : Their beauty loses its delight ; Already through their loo! a come straying Pale threads of silvery white: Already do the wrink les furrow" The features erst so blithe and gay. And fades the smile which seemed to borrow The sweetness of the flowers of May :

Such is, alas! dread time's inevitable sway! Bobold the martial youth advancing. As martial youth may well becoon, And arrows that as hear frost gleam ! ___ There, on the grassy mead, Over his chestant steed He flings a cloth of leopard hide, And to the castle hies him gaily prancing, Where dwells a levely maiden soul-entrancing

His own, his own sweet bride; Then gently knocks, and round him glancing, Throws back the door, and closps hor tigh And she, too, clasps his hands, enhancing The mpture of that night. Vain fleeting dream! With none to guide him See him now leaning on his staff. His sole support, where all avoid him Or great him with a scornful laugh: Such is the old man's end—a butt for idle spoif!

Cease, then, to wish; cease to complain: What's past is past, and comes not back again. -Cornhall Magazine.

TREASURE TROVE. A labourer, digging a drain in a farm on hundred sovereigns. He was able to bring and as it is in the nineteenth. be aptly applied to him:

Omnie Arietippum decuit status et color et res." In every state, hue, and circumstance of life Cardinal Manning is at home. In his titular church at Rome, addressing his clergy in Italian, and the crowd of his own countrymen, assembled to witness his installation. in English; in his pro-cathedral at Kensington, preaching to a congregation half composed of 'heretics,' who have come as much to see him as to hear him; at a garden-party at Chiswick: at Exeter Hall, pleading the cause of total abstinence with all the fervour of an apostle: at the Vatican Basilica, swaying the debates and shaping the decisions of an Œcumenical Council; at a bright Oxford banquet, in honour of some academic festival reappearing for a brief hour, as if from another world, on the stage of his early triumphs and first friendships-wherever the work which he has chosen to take in hand may be in any way advanced, Cardinal Manning is to be found, always saying the right word and doing the right thing, as by a sort of natural gift and instinctive wisdom. The position which Dr. Manning actually

Cardinal says his daily Mass; after which he holds is, it must be allowed, a great one. The income which it gives him is less than a decent benefice in the English Church. The head of the Roman Catholics of England, like the Pope himself, is in no small degree indebted to 'the voluntary principle.' But the greatness of his office stands out in more the earlier years of his career were spent. It conspicuous relief from his bareness of this requires an effort of something more than world's goods. In the old European system, memory to figure to oneself this prince of which the French Revolution so completely the Catholic Church who seems the emshattered, a Cardinal of the Holy Roman bodiment of all that is ascetic, hierarchical non sunt, sed regibus requiparantur, was the clergyman.
